Proslogium Anselm of Canterbury

"I began to ask myself whether there might be found a single argument which would require no other for its proof than itself alone; and alone would suffice to demonstrate that God truly exists..."

Proslogium was written as a prayer, or contemplation, by the medieval cleric Anselm which serves to reflect on the attributes of God and endeavours to explain how God can have qualities which often seem contradictory. In the course of this meditation, the first known formulation of the ontological argument for the existence of God was set out.

This electronic edition features an active table of contents.

Proslogium is part of The Fig Classic Series on Medieval Theology. To view more books in our catalog, visit us at fig-books.com.
