Lillian was so excited to be going to Wyoming to meet her husband to be face to face. She had waited for too long to search for a husband and found that becoming a mail order bride was her best option.

She had to leave Chattanooga to become a bride, but it was a trade off she was willing to make. Andrew Booker, her intended, had told her so much about Cheyenne and she was certain she would love her new home. Becoming a rancher's wife would be the perfect life for her.

Lillian must think on her feet when she arrives in Cheyenne. She gets news that broke her heart and made her mad all at the same time. She knows that God works in mysterious ways, but she struggles to find his purpose in this situation.

The crafty Lillian finds a solution to her money woes and a suitor at right about the same time. True love blooms but Dean's family turns out to not be her kind of people.

Will she find a way to handle her soon to be in-laws or will she choose a less stressful family to marry into?

Annie Boone writes clean, Christian romance. This Christmas story, The Christmas Proposal, is a sweet love story to celebrate the most magical of the seasons.
