Believed to be kept under guard by his traveling circus's owner, Fabian Castillo hasn't been seen or heard from for more than seven months. Astrid Falk has one week to root him out. The private investigators at Shrew & Company always find their men, and Astrid is no exception.

When Astrid pulls the bewitching acrobat from captivity, however, he refuses to cut and run. He's got a score to settle with his former foster father Jacques, and Astrid can't leave Fabian on his own. He speaks no English, and she speaks no Spanish, but when they touch, they don't need words. There are some perks to being psychic.

Solitary Fabian wants Astrid to be more than just his translator, and she just might be on the market for a new partner. But, the last man she gave her heart to left her high and dry when she needed him most. Committing to Fabian would require a leap of faith she's not sure she can muster, especially if there's no net below to catch her if she falls.
